Cantor Colburn Attorney Alicia Hayter Recognized as a New Leader in the Law 2017 by the Connecticut Law Tribune

Alicia Hayter

Hartford, Conn. – Cantor Colburn attorney Alicia Hayter has been recognized as a New Leader in the Law by the Connecticut Law Tribune. She and only 24 other lawyers received the honor, and they will be recognized at an awards dinner on October 3 in Hartford. This distinction spotlights lawyers under the age of 40 who have excelled in client service and cultivation, and in performing pro bono work or community service in a volunteer capacity.

Ms. Hayter joined Cantor Colburn in 2011 as an associate patent attorney in its Electrical-Mechanical Department. Before joining the firm, she was first a Mechanical Engineer and then a Patent Engineer at Otis Elevator. Ms. Hayter focuses her practice on the preparation and prosecution of patent applications related to mechanical engineering technologies, serving both foreign and domestic clients. She also prepares opinions and performs patent searching. Within the mechanical arts, Ms. Hayter has handled a wide range of technologies including aerospace and aeronautical components, engines, heating and cooling systems, and component manufacturing systems. She has a bachelor's in mechanical engineering from Villanova University and a J.D. from the University of Connecticut School of Law. Ms. Hayter was recognized by Super Lawyers® as a Connecticut Rising Star in 2016.
